These days, you can do most things over the phone or online that you might have once gone to a police station to do. You can report a crime*, contact your local neighbourhood officer, get crime prevention advice, join Neighbourhood Watch and much more.

With over 700 officers and police staff in dedicated neighbourhood roles, your police are on the streets - with new technology at their fingertips - so expert help is never far away.

In an emergency, including a crime in progress, always use 999
